The Parliament of the World's Religions is Back in Chicago after 130 Years

"It was the ... first time that representatives of the world's religions came together in a spirit of mutual understanding and unity in

ne hundred and thirty years ago, in 1893, the World's Fair (World's Columbian Exposition) was held in Chicago. We know the deep imprint that fair left on the city and its architecture. Even now, from the Field Museum, to the Art Institute, to the Joffrey Ballet's recent Nutcracker that had a world's fair theme, the city continues to celebrate the legacy of one of the greatest scientific gatherings and explorations of the modern era.

One of the events at the fair that had the most enduring impact on the emerging global modern vision was the first "Parliament of the World's Religions."

It was the birth of the interfaith movement and the first time that representatives of the world's religions came together in a spirit of mutual understanding and unity in diversity. For many in America, it was their first meeting with Eastern religions. There were representatives of Chinese religions, of Japanese Zen, Sri Lankan Buddhism, Jainism, as well as the Abrahamic religions, theosophy, and others.

As a student of world religions, this is an event that has a special place in my heart. Since my childhood I had heard of the parliament and of its defining moment, when Swami Vivekananda, representing Hinduism, opened his address by saying, "Brothers and Sisters of America" drawing thousands to their feet for a two-minute ovation. It is still part of my fondness for Chicago.

I have been involved in representing Judaism at the Home of Harmony, a center of study of the world's religions in Chicago, based on the vision of the first parliament. One of the events that led me to the rabbinate was, as a volunteer, attending a global meeting of the world's foremost religious leaders in Israel, organized by the Elijah Institute.

After a 130-year hiatus, it is a joy that the Parliament of the World's Religions will be back this summer, in Chicago—August 14–18.

The parliament's message of understanding and promoting peace, justice, and harmony is more relevant than ever. If the world's religions could see each other as complementary ancient sources of wisdom, rather than rivals competing for the hearts and souls of humankind, the world would be a very different place. In our days, religion still has much to teach us about the value of human life, the advantages of community, the benefits of a life well lived, and the transformative power of spirit.

The theme of this year's Parliament of the World's Religions is "Defending Freedom & Human Rights."

I urge you to visit the parliament at McCormick Place and discover the richness and the pressing messages that will be conveyed there. I will be manning the Jewish area at various times throughout the week. As Jewish Chicagoans, we should be proud of our religion's contribution to the great unfolding of humanity and that our city is the birthplace of the interfaith movement.

THE CANTOR'S VOICE

The Borscht Belt Makes a Return

Now that we're in the middle of the summer, my thoughts wander to that magical place and time where hundreds of thousands of Jews used to spend their summers—in the Catskill mountains of upstate New York, also known as the Borscht Belt or the Jewish Alps. So named, because, in the first half of the 20th century, before air conditioning, New York Jewish families would escape the hot city summers in the Catskills. Summering in the Borscht Belt had faded by the 1960.

Borscht, the soup, originated in Ukraine and was popularized in North America by Yiddish-speaking Ashkenazi Jews, at about this same time. There are many types of borscht. The most well-known Jewish type of borscht is parve red beet borscht eaten cold with a dollop of sour cream. While growing up, my parents usually had borscht in the fridge, and while it's really pretty good, I never ate it. I'm pretty sure my kids don't even know what it is.

There is currently a renewed interest in the golden age of the Borscht Belt, helped in part by the popularity of the series The Marvelous Mrs. Maisel and the enduring film and stage musical Dirty Dancing.

The Borscht Belt's impact on show business is well known. Among the many Jews who started their careers there and subsequently steered American comedy and culture are Woody Allen, Milton Berle, Lenny Bruce, George Burns, Sid Caesar, Phyllis Diller, Danny Kaye, Jerry Lewis, Carl Reiner, Joan Rivers, and Allen Sherman, to name a few. Toward the end of Borscht Belt's heyday, Robert Klein and Jerry Seinfeld also had gigs there.

I learned from an article in Tablet Magazine entitled "Back to the Borscht Belt"(https://www.tabletmag.com/sections/community/articles/back-to-borscht-belt-jewish-catskills-revival) that there are a string of new projects commemorating the Jewish past and revival in the Catskills. In Ellenville, NY, there is a weekend long "Borscht Belt Fest" of comedy, music, and talks; the town is also home to the Borscht Belt Museum. A group of historians and preservationists have formed the "Borscht Belt Historical Marker Project," whose mission is "to place markers that designate places important to the Borscht Belt's vibrant history and to celebrate its impact on American Jewish life, the legacy of the Catskills, New York State history, American culture and entertainment, and to teach the ways in which the era's rich history is enduringly present and woven into the very fiber of the region."

Marisa Scheinfeld, founder and project director of the Borscht Belt Historical Marker Project, says: "I look at [the Catskills] like it's a smorgasbord. There is the Orthodox Jewish group going up there, creating their own Jewish vacation land, and you have people that go up there for the yoga and meditation retreats, some of which are at old hotels. And you have the Brooklyn hipsters, people going up for the breweries. I find that it's the same reasons why people have always gone."

I personally have a childhood memory of the Catskills from the early '60s, from a road trip I took with my grandmother and step-grandfather up to Monticello, New York, deep in the Borscht Belt, where my grandfather's brother operated an orthodox so-called "bungalow colony."

It is a truly a beautiful area, and I am happy that, with a new generation, the Catskill rejuvenation is taking place.

Enjoy the summer! May The Borscht Be with You!

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Thank You!

Dear Friends.

I hope you are all enjoying the summer months. We've had wonderful Musical Kabbalat Shabbat services that were well attended, with dancing and singing and an overall feeling of being connected to our fellow congregants and our entire Har Zion family. We have also celebrated births, anniversaries, and birthday.

The summer always seems to fly by. It's hard to believe that right around the corner are the High Holy Days. There is much going on at the temple including amazing programming a Back to the Shul BBQ, a Shofar Walk, and of course preparing for the fall and the High Holy Days.

Look for emails and at our website for our upcoming events.

Wishing you an enjoyable summer. B'shalom,

EARLY CHILDHOOD NEWS

It has been a wonderful summer!

And just like that—summer has flown by!

Over the past few weeks, we have welcomed many new and returning friends and, with those friends, we have explored different themes each week, including lots of special visits—from the firefighters, a magician, and a "trip" to the petting zoo.

The children enjoyed a rich summer program with chugim (enrichments)—such as cooking, science, and art—that related to the weekly themes.

The children also got to know our famous storyteller Saba Alan Peres, who has visited us every week and shared wonderful books with us. The children also enjoyed meeting Mr. Johnny from My Gym, who had the children participate in energizing fitness games and non-competitive gymnastics.

Our wonderful staff has been working hard to make sure that everyone in camp is having fun, making friends, and developing a fond connection with learning and play. I am so proud of the campers, our staff, the community of parents and temple clergy, and office staff who have made this summer of Camp Zion a wonderful success.

Eating our Way into the New Year

Rosh Hashanah 101: What do you think of when you think of Rosh Hashanah? Long services? The shofar? Apples and honey?

Apples and honey is the most common food associated with Rosh Hashanah, the Jewish new year. Why do we eat apples and honey? A simple answer is "for a sweet new year." A more complex answer is "We dip the tart apple in the sweet honey because we have to take action in order to find the sweet in a not-so-sweet situation."

While the "for a sweet new year" is common, the next step is to think "What does a sweet new year look like?" It's helpful to think about that question, because if you don't, you won't know if you are having one. As Yogi Berra, the New York Yankees player, said, "If you don't know where you are going you are likely to end up somewhere else."

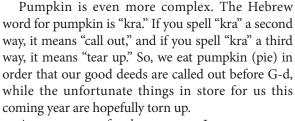

Rosh Hashanah 201: Apples and honey aren't the only special food for Rosh Hashanah. We also make round challah for the holiday. This can be accomplished with fancy braiding, or by taking one long piece of dough and making it into a spiral.

Why the round challah for the new year? There are two reasons (at least). One is because the year is round, or really like a spiral. After a full year, we're back to Rosh Hashanah, though we're a bit further along in our lives. The other reason is that a round challah looks like a crown, and on Rosh Hashanah we think of G-d as the Sovereign of the universe.

Gardening For The Environment: Watch for the Fall Date!

Come learn how to introduce native plants into your landscape. Adrian Fischer from West Cook Wild Ones will share how to pick locally native plants and why these are better for healing the soil and air. Combine with annuals or other perennials if you like, but do add local natives. They know how to live here and do well with less water. And they'll attract birds, butterflies, and bees, and will come back, better than ever, in years to come. Date/time to be announced.

Some of the founding fathers of Rabbinic Judaism were political leaders who were forming the first Jewish communities after the destruction of the 2nd Temple and coalescing their authority, while negotiating with the Romans.

Others were intellectual forces who were laying the foundation for a Judaism based on scholarship, debate, and home and synagogue bound mitzvot.

Still others were the spiritual giants who made miracles, breathed life into the new Judaism and kept it connected to God.

Shul Babies & Bubbes & Zaydes

The Shul Babies & Bubbes & Zaydes program pairs temple seniors with younger families with children who are without relatives living nearby. The program works to foster relationships between the younger and older members of our congregation, and will help to build our community in the process.

In addition to providing companionship and the opportunity to improve the lives of the participating seniors, this intergenerational program can also help fill the very real need of families without nearby relatives.

Participating seniors and the parents of the children are asked to complete a short interest survey which will be used to pair them up. In addition to getting together outside the temple, all participants will be invited to the temple's multigenerational programs.

We are also looking for two or three temple members who are willing to co-chair the program for the first year or two.

If you would be interested in leading or participating in this exciting new program, or would like to share your thoughts on how we can best implement it, please contact our VP of programming, Barb Yong, at barbaralyong@gmail. com or call her at 708.482.3123.

WSUSY (United Synagogue Youth)

We are hoping to restart the Har Zion chapter of United Synagogue Youth, USY, WSUSY. We are currently searching for one or two people to serve as Youth Advisors for our the chapter. This is a paid, part-time position. Contact David Schwartz at dschwartz@wsthz.org if you are interested or if you know of someone who might be.

And, while USY used to be limited to high school kids, it has been expanded to include younger school-age children. The members of USY will not only be invited to participate in monthly activities with other temple kids, but can attend events throughout the CHUSY (Chicagoland) region. There are opportunities for the older kids to take on leadership roles within the chapter. We are also hoping the parents of our USYers will occasionally act as drivers and chaperones.

Keep a look out for the WSUSY activities starting this fall!

Food for District 15 Migrants

Har Zion, Oak Park Temple, and the Secular Jewish Community and School are partnering to support the District 15 Response Team, caring for the up to 40+ migrants living at the District 15 Police Station in Chicago.

There is an urgent need for meals that are currently being donated by individuals, restaurants, organizations and other faith communities. Our three Jewish communities provide breakfasts on Wednesday mornings at 8 AM. Har Zion provided breakfast on July 19 and Oak Park Temple coordinated breakfast on July 26. After August 2, it is Har Zion's turn again on Wednesday, August 30. Sign up at: https://bit.ly/D25Food if you would like to help out.

We need fruit and lots of additional items for August 30. Please contact John Dempsey at harzionsponsorship@gmail.com if you have questions. You can also donate money to this local food effort at: https://bit.ly/D25GFM or you can donate though Har Zion to fund our efforts.

There is also a need for storage of supplies the migrants need, like clothes, suitcases, toiletries. If you know of a site that can offer substantial storage, let John know.

JCFS CORNER

Jewish Community Programs https://www.jcfs.org/blog/12-steps-days-awe

By Rabbi Joe Ozarowski, Rabbinic Counselor and Chaplain at JCFS Chicago, D. Min., BCC

People actively working a Recovery Program already know the worth and power of the well-known 12 Steps. But I have always believed that everyone should work a program—there is so much wisdom within these sensible steps that can help all people struggling with challenges.

At JCFS Chicago addiction services, we try to connect the spirituality and practices of Judaism to the Steps and addiction-recovery year round. The Jewish Days of Awe, often known as the "High Holidays," offer us the chance to reflect and integrate the Steps with the larger spiritual messages embedded in these special days.

Here are some distinct thematic connections between the 12 Steps and this sacred season:

1. We admitted we were powerless over addiction—that our lives had become unmanageable.

How many of us find times that our lives seem unmanageable? Probably most of us—the renewing themes of Rosh Hashana and the cleansing themes of Yom Kippur give us the chance to step back and see our lives in perspective before we begin to think of change.

2. Came to believe that a Power greater than ourselves could restore us to sanity.

One of the major themes of Rosh Hashana is malchuyut, noting God's sovereignty above creation. It is a core topic of the liturgy as well as the music. In this world, we think things are about us, that we are in control. They are not and we are not. This lesson is not only true about addiction but about all of life.

3. Made a decision to turn our will and our lives over to the care of God as we understood God.

Tshuva, the Hebrew term for repentance, actually means return. In this season we turn and return ourselves over to our Higher Power as we face the challenges and joys of a new year.

4. Made a searching and fearless moral inventory of ourselves.

Cheshbon hanefesh, spiritual accounting, is a practice anyone can do and is often done at this time of year. One can do a "soul version" of an Excel spreadsheet, look at one's spiritual profits and losses and use this to move forward to a healthier life.

5. Admitted to God, to ourselves and to another human being the exact nature of our wrongs.

Vidui, a confession of misdeeds, is an essential part of the Yom Kippur service. It is not enough to reflect on what has gone awry. We need to say it, to

KOSHER FOOD/SUPPLIES DRIVE

As her bat mitzvah project, Elizabeth Berman is sponsoring a food/supplies drive for The Ark. To contact Elizabeth Berman, write mysilvahalo@gmail.com articulate it, in order to move forward to a richer, better life.

6. Were entirely ready to have God remove all these defects of character.

In Judaism, preparation is key. A good Rosh Hashana dinner or a good davening/service cannot happen without preparation. This step reminds us that we need to invoke our Higher Power as well as our own efforts as we move forward to greet the New Year and the next parts of our lives.

7. Humbly asked God to remove our shortcomings.

The last line of the prayer Avinu Malkeinu notes that God is like a parent as well as a ruler/guide, and asks God to be gracious and answer us, even though we ourselves may not always bring much to the table. Once we have noted (Steps 1 and 2) that we cannot do this alone, we ask for help from our Higher Power in spite of our shortcomings... or maybe even because of them!

8. Made a list of all persons we had harmed, and became willing to make amends to them all.

Saying we are sorry can be a tough process. Being willing to apologize can be even tougher. Determining where to direct our regrets could be the hardest task of all. But before we can make things right with God and our fellow human beings, we need to figure out whom we have wronged and be willing to do what is right.

9. Made direct amends to such people wherever possible, except when to do so would injure them or others

Mitzvot bein adam l'chavero, the commandments governing our relationships with others, are as much a part of the Days of Awe as Mitzvot between us and God. Rabbinic literature teaches how Yom Kippur, while obtaining God's forgiveness for us, does not help if we have wronged someone else. We need to go to them and ask forgiveness, up to three times.

10. Continued to take personal inventory, and when we were wrong, promptly admitted it.

Tshuva, turning and returning, is not only a one shot action focused on the Fall Jewish Holidays, but a constant process in which we can be engaged all year. These sacred days may give us the jump start, but Cheshbon hanefesh and amends continue throughout the year.

11. Sought through prayer and meditation to improve our conscious contact with God as we understood Him, praying only for knowledge of His will for us and the power to carry that out.

Prayer is a major theme of the Days of Awe, our encounter with God. We should not only be asking this year, "What do we want from God," but, "What does God want from us?"

12. Having had a spiritual awakening as the result of these steps, we tried to carry this message to alcoholics, and to practice these principles in all our affairs.

When the last shofar blast is blown, we sing and dance "Next Year in Jerusalem." We do not only refer to earthly Jerusalem but also deep down to the Jerusalem within our souls and hearts. When we can do that, it's an awakening!

May your Fall Jewish holiday season be filled with sobriety, serenity, joy and love!

STAR: SUBURBAN THURSDAY AFTERNOON RETIREES

Suburban Thursday Afternoon Retirees, better known as STAR, meets every Thursday from 1–3 PM, except on Jewish and national holidays. This vibrant group includes attendees from Temple Har Zion and Oak Park Temple, as well as the broader community. Our August meetings will continue to be in person at Temple Har Zion, with the option to attend via Zoom.

A joint endeavor of both temples, STAR offers a place for candid discussions on a variety of topics as well as an opportunity to socialize and to support each other.

In August, STAR will meet on the 3rd, 10th, 17th, 24th and 31st:

AUGUST 3RD: Abby Schmelling will present on Waldheim Cemetery.

AUGUST 10TH: Our presenter is Joslyn Bowling Dixon, Executive Director of the Oak Park Public Library since November 2022.

AUGUST 17TH AND 31ST: A chance to schmooze and perhaps a surprise guest.

AUGUST 24TH: Ravi Parakkat will speak to us about Takeout 25, a platform he started in 2020 to bring the community together and help save local restaurants.

If you'd like more information about STAR, contact your Temple office. We at STAR feel like a small community learning and growing together. Please join us!
